Other relations in good authors, though we do not positively deny, yet have they not been unquestioned by some. Brown.
 2. Indisputable; not to be opposed.
 It did not please the gods, who instruct the people;
 And their unquestion'd pleasures must be serv'd. B. Johnson.
 3. Not interrogated; not examined.
 Muttering pray'rs as holy rites she meant,
 Through the divided crowd unquestion'd went. Dryden.
UNQUI'CK. adj. Motionless.
 His senses droop, his steady eyes unquick;
 And much he ails, and yet he is not sick. Daniel's Civ. War.
UNQUI'CKENED. adj. Not animated; not ripened to vitality.
 Every fetus bears a secret hoard,
 With sleeping, unexpanded issue stor'd;
 Which num'rous, but unquicken'd progeny,
 Clasp'd, and enwrap'd, within each other lie. Blackmore.
UNQUI'ET. adj. [inquiet, Fr. inquietus, Lat.]
 1. Moved with perpetual agitation; not calm; not still.
 From grammatick flats and shallows, they are on the sudden transported to be tossed and turmoil'd with their unballast'd wits, in fathomless and unquiet depths of controversy. Milton.
 2. Disturbed; full of perturbation; not at peace.
 Go with me to church, and call me wife,
 And then away to Venice to your friend;
 For never shall you lie by Portia's side
 With an unquiet soul. Shakefp. Mer. of Venice.
 Thy love hopeful to regain,
 From thee I will not hide
 What thoughts in my unquiet breast are ris'n. Milton.
 3. Restless; unsatisfied.
 She glares in balls, front boxes, and the ring;
 A vain, unquiet, glittering, wretched thing.
 Mirth from company is but a fluttering, unquiet motion, that beats about the breast for a few moments, and after leaves it empty. Pope.
UNQUIETLY. adv. Without rest.
 Who's there besides foul weather?—
 —One minded like the weather, most Unquietly. Shakefp. K. Lear.
UNQUIETNESS. n. f.
 1. Want of tranquillity.
 Thou, like a violent noise, cam'st rushing in,
 And mak'st them wake and start to new unquietness. Denham.
 2. Want of peace.
 It is most enemy to war, and most hateth unquietness. Spens.
 3. Restlessness; turbulence.
 What pleasure can there be in that estate,
 Which your unquietness has made me hate? Dryden.
 4. Perturbation; uneasiness.
 Is my lord angry?—
 —He went hence but now,
 And certainly in strange unquietness. Shakefp. Othello.
 From inordinate love, and vain fear, comes all unquietness of spirit, and distraction of our senses. Taylor.
UNRA'CKED. adj. Not poured from the lees.
 Rack the one vessel from the lees, and pour the lees of the racked vessel into the unracked vessel. Bacon's Nat. Hist.
UNRA'KED. adj. Not thrown together and covered. Used only of fires.
 Cricket, to Wind for chimnies shalt thou leap:
 Where fires thou find'st unrak'd, and hearths unswept,
 There pinch the maids. Shakefp. Merry Wives of Windsor.
UNRA'NSACKED. adj. Not pillaged.
 He gave that rich city for a prey unto his soldiers, who left neither house, nor corner thereof unransacked. Kneller.
UNRA'NSOMED. adj. Not set free by payment for liberty.
 Unransom'd here receive the spotless fair,
 Accept the hecatomb the Greeks prepare. Pope's Iliad.
 To UNRA'VE. v. a.
 1. To disentangle; to extricate; to clear.
 There unravel all
 This dark design, this mystery of fate. Addison's Cato.
 With Machiavelian sagacity thou unravell'st intrigues of state. Arbutnot.
 2. To disorder; to throw out of the present constitution.
 How can any thing succeed well with people that are to be pleas'd with nothing, unless the ball of the universe may be unravell'd, and the laws of providence reverberated. L'Estrange.
 O the traitor's name!
 I'll know it; I will: art thou be conjur'd for it,
 And nature all unravell'd. Dryden and Lee's Oedipus.
 So prophane and sceptical an age, takes a pride in unravelling
 all the received principles of reason and religion. Tillotson.
 3. To clear up the intrigue of a play.
 The solution, or unravelling of the intrigue, commences, when the reader begins to see the doubts cleared up. Pope.
 Thus supernaturally is the plot brought to perfection;
 nor is the unravelling of it less happily imagined. Shakefp. Illi.
UNRA'ZED. adj. Unhewn.
 As smooth as Hebe's their unrazor'd lips. Milton.

UNRE'ACHED. adj. Not attained.
 Labour with unequal force to climb
 That lofty hill, unreach'd by former time. Dryden.
UNRE'AD. adj.
 1. Not read; not publicly pronounced.
 These books are safer and better to be left publicly un-read. Hooker, b. v.
 His muse had starv'd, had not a piece unread,
 And by a player bought, supply'd her bread. Dryden.
 2. Untaught; not learned in books.
 Uncertain whole the narrower span,
 The clown unread, or half-read gentleman. Dryden.
UNRE'ADINESS. n. f.
 1. Want of readiness; want of promptness.
 This impereparation and unreadiness, when they find in us, then turn it to the soothing up of themselves in that accursed fancy. Hooker, b. v.
 2. Want of preparation.
 Nothing is so great an enemy to tranquillity, and a contented spirit, as the amazement and confusions of unreadiness and inconsideration. Taylor's Rule of Living &c.
UNRE'ADY. adj.
 1. Not prepared; not fit.
 The fairy knight
 Departed thence, albe his wounds wide,
 Not thoroughly heal'd, unready were to ride. Fairy Queen.
 How now, my lords? what all unready to? Shakefp. Lear.
 2. Not prompt; not quick.
 From a temperate inactivity, we are unready to put in execution the suggestions of reason; or by a content in every species of truth, we embrace the shadow thereof. Brown.
 3. Awkward; ungain.
 Young men, in the conduct of actions, use extreme remedies at first, and that which doubleth all errors, will not acknowledge or retract them; like an unready horse, that will neither stop nor turn. Bacon.
UNRE'AL. adj. Unsubstantial.
 Hence, terrible shadow!
 Unreal mock'ry, hence! Shakefp. Macbeth.
 I with pain
 Voyag'd th' unreal, vast, unbounded deep
 Of horrible confusion. Milton's Par. Lost, b. x.
UNRE'ASONABLE. adj.
 1. Exorbitant; claiming, or insisting on more than is fit.
 Since every language is so full of its own proprieties, that what is beautiful in one, is often barbarous in another, it would be unreasonable to limit a translator to the narrow compass of his author's words. Dryden's Pref. to Ovid.
 My intention in prefixing your name, is not to desire your protection of the following papers, which I take to be a very unreasonable request; since, by being inscribed to you, you cannot recommend them without some suspicion of partiality. Swift's Project for the Advancement of Religion.
 2. Not agreeable to reason.
 No reason known to us; but that there is no reason thereof, I judge most unreasonable to imagine. Hooker, b. i.
 It is unreasonable for men to be judges in their own cases;
 self-love will make men partial to themselves and their friends. Lake.
 She entertained many unreasonable prejudices against him, before she was acquainted with his personal worth. Addison.
 3. Greater than is fit; immoderate.
 Those that place their hope in another world, have, in a great measure, conquer'd dread of death, and unreasonable love of life. Astell.
UNRE'ASONABLENESS. n. f.
 1. Exorbitance; excessive demand.
 The unreasonableness of propositions is not more evident, than that they are not the joint desires of their major number. K. Char. d.
 A young university disputant was complaining of the unreasonableness of a lady, with whom he was engaged in a point of controversy. Addison's Freeholder, N<sup>o</sup> 32.
 2. Inconsistency with reason.
 The unreasonableness and presumption of those that thus project, have not so much as a thought, all their lives long, to advance so far as attrition. Hammond.
UNRE'ASONABLY. adv.
 1. In a manner contrary to reason.
 I'll not over the threshold, till my lord return from the wars.—
 —Fye! you confine yourself most unreasonably. Shakefp. Lear.
 To UNRE'AVE. v. a. [now unravel; from un and reave, or ravel; perhaps the same with reave, to tear, or break asunder.]
 To unwind; to disentangle.
 Penelope, for her Ulysses' sake,
 Devis'd a web her woe to deceive;
 In which the work that the all day did make,
 The same at night she did unravel. Spenser.

UNREPA'TED. adj. Not blunted.
 A number of fencers try it out with unrepa'ted swords. Hakew.
UNREPU'RSABLE. adj. Obnoxious to no censure.
 Keep this commandment without spot, unrepukable, until the appearing of Christ. 1 Tim. vi. 14.
UNRECE'IVED. adj. Not received.
 Where the signs and sacraments of his grace are not, through contempt, unreceived, or received with contempt, they really give what they promise, and are what they signify. Hooker.
UNRECLA'IMED. adj.
 1. Not turned.
 A savageness of unreclaimed blood,
 Of general assault. Shakefp. Hamlet.
 2. Not reformed.
 This is the most favourable treatment a sinner can hope for, who continues unreclaimed by the goodness of God. Rogers.
UNRECONC'ILEABLE. adj.
 1. Not to be appeased; implacable.
 He had many infirmities and sins, unreconcilable with perfect righteousness. Hammond's Pract. Catechism.
 2. Not to be made consistent with.
 Let me lament,
 That our stars, unreconcilable, should have divided
 Our equalness to this. Shakefp. Ant. and Cleop.
UNRECONC'ILED. adj. Not reconciled.
 If you bethink yourself of any crime
Unreconcil'd as yet to heav'n and grace, Solicit for it straight. Shakefp. Othello.
UNRECO'RDED. adj. Not kept in remembrance by publick monuments.
Unrecorded left through many an age,
 Worthy 'have not remain'd so long unsung. Milton.
 The great Antileus! a name
 Not unrecorded in the rolls of fame. Pope's Odyssey.
UNRECO'UNTED. adj. Not told; not related.
 This is yet but young, and may be left To some ears unrecorded. Shakefp. Hen. VIII.
UNRECU'ITABLE. adj. Incapable of repairing the deficiencies of an army.
 Empty and unrecruitable colonels of twenty men in a company. Milton on Education.
UNRECU'RING. adj. Irremediable.
 I found her straying in the park,
 Seeking to hide herself; as doth the deer,
 That hath received some unrecuring wound. Shakefp. Lear.
UNREDUC'ED. adj. Not reduced.
 The earl divided all the rest of the Irish countries unreduced, into shires. Davies's Ireland.
UNREFO'RMABLE. adj. Not to be put into a new form.
 The rule of faith is alone unmoveable and unreformable;
 to wit, of believing in one only God omnipotent, creator of the world, and in his son Jesus Christ, born of the virgin Mary. Hammond's Fundamentals.
UNREFORMED. adj.
 1. Not amended; not corrected.
 This general revolt, when overcome, produced a general reformation of the Irish, which ever before had been unre-formed. Davies's Ireland.
 We retain the Julian constitution of the year, unreformed, without consideration of the defective minutes. Holder.
 2. Not brought to newness of life.
 If he may believe that Christ died for him, as now he is, an
unreformed Christian, then what needs his reformation? Ham.
 Unhumbled, unrepentant, unreform'd. Milton.
UNREFRA'CTED. adj. Not refracted.
 The sun's circular image is made by an unrefracted beam of light. Newton's Opticks.
UNREFRE'SHED. adj. Not cheered; not relieved.
 Its symptoms are a spontaneous lassitude, being unrefreshed
 by sleep. Arbutnot.
UNREGARDED. adj. Not heeded; not respected; neglected.
 We, ever by his might,
 Had thrown to ground the unregard'd right. Fairy Queen.
 Do'st see, how unregarded now
 That piece of beauty pastes?
 There was a time when I did vow
 To that alone;
 But mark the fate of faces.
 On the cold earth lies th' unregarded king;
 A headless carcass, and a nameless thing.
 Me you have often counsel'd to remove
 My vain pursuit of unregarded love. Denham.
 Laws against immorality have not been executed, and proclamations to enforce them, are wholly unregard'd. Swift.
UNREGISTERED. adj. Not recorded.
 Hotter hours,
Unregister'd in vulgar fame, you have Luxuriously pick'd out. Shakefp. Ant. and Cleopatra.
UNREGENERATE. adj. Not brought to a new life.
 This is not to be understood promiscuously of all men,
unregenerate persons, as well as regenerate. Stephens.

UNREINED. adj. Not restrained by the bridle.
 Left from thy flying steed unrein'd, as once
 Bellerophon, though from a lower clime
 Dismounted, on th' Aelian field I fall. Milton.
UNRELE'NTING. adj. Hard; cruel; feeling no pity.
 By many hands your father was subdu'd;
 But only slaughter'd by the ireful arm
 Of unrelenting Clifford. Shakefp. Hen. VI.
 Place pitchy barrels on the fatal stake,
 That so her torture may be shortened.
 Will nothing turn your unrelenting hearts?
 These are the realms of unrelenting fate;
 And awful Rhadamanthus rules the state. Dryden.
 False tears shall wet his unrelenting eyes,
 And his glad heart with artful sighs shall heave. Smith.
UNRELIE'VABLE. adj. Admitting no succour.
 As no degree of distress is unrelievable by his power, so no extremity of it is inconsistent with his compassion. Boyle.
UNREL'EVED. adj.
 1. Not succoured.
 The goddess griev'd,
 Her favour'd host thou'd perish unreliev'd. Dryden.
 2. Not cal'd.
 The uncal'dness of unreliev'd thirst is not lessened by continuance, but grows the more unsupportable. Boyle.
UNREMARK'ABLE. adj.
 1. Not capable of being observed.
 Our understanding, to make a complete notion, must add something else to this fleeting and unremarkable superficies, that may bring it to our acquaintance. Digby.
 2. Not worthy of notice.
Unremarkable. adj. Admitting no remedy.
 He so handled it, that it rather seem'd he had more come into a defence of an unremediable mischief already committed, than that they had done it at first by his consent. Sidney.
UNREMEMBERING. adj. Having no memory.
 That unremembering of its former pain,
 The soul may suffer mortal flesh again. Dryden.
UNREMEMBERED. adj. Not retained in the mind; not recollected.
 I cannot pass unremembered, their manner of disguising the shafts of chimnies in various fashions, whereof the noblest is the pyramidal. Watson's Architecture.
UNREMEMBRANCE. n. f. Forgetfulness; want of remembrance.
 Some words are negative in their original language, but seem positive, because the negation is unknown; as amnesty, an unremembrance, or general pardon. Watts's Logic.
UNREMOVABLE. adj. Not to be taken away.
 Never was there any woman, that with more unremovable determination gave herself to love, after she had once set before her mind the worthiness of Amphialus. Sidney, b. ii.
 You know the fiery quality of the duke,
 How unremovable and fixt he is
 In his own course. Shakefp. Lear.
UNREMOV'ED. adj.
 1. Not taken away.
 It is impossible, where this opinion is imbibed and unremoved, to found any convincing argument. Hammond.
 We could have had no certain prospect of his happiness,
 while the last obstacle was unremoved. Dryden's Virgil.
 2. Not capable of being removed.
 Like Teneriff or Atlas unremov'd. Milton.
UNREMOV'ABLY. adv. In a manner that admits no removal.
 His discourses are unremovably coupled to his nature. Sha.
UNREPA'ID. adj. Not recompensed; not compensated.
 Hadst thou full pow'r
 To measure out his torments by thy will;
 Yet what could'st thou, tormentor, hope to gain?
 Thy loits continues, unrepaid by pain. Dryden.
UNREPE'AL'D. adj. Not revoked; not abrogated.
 When you are pinched with any unrepeal'd act of parliament, you declare you will not be obliged by it. Dryden.
 Nature's law, and unrepeal'd command,
 That gives to lighter things the greatest height. Blackmore.
UNREPEN'ED. adj. Not regarded with penitential sorrow.
 They are no fit supplicants to seek his mercy in the behalf of others, whose own unrepented sins provoked his just indignation. Hooker, b. v.
 If I, vent'ring to displease
 God for the fear of man, and man prefer,
 Set God behind: which in his jealousy
 Shall never, unrepented, find forgiveness. Milton's Agonistes.
 As in unrepente! sin she dy'd,
 Doom'd to the same bad place, is punish'd for her pride. Dryden.
 With what confusion will he hear all his unrepented sins produced before men and angels? Rogers's Sermons.
UNREPENT'ING. adj. Not repenting; not penitent; not UNREPENT'ANT. } sorrowful for sin.
